Colored Moving Picture Show

There seems to be some misunderstanding among some of the people in regard to the colored moving picture show. The program was to put the picture show in the building where the pool room now is, as this would keep the building closed all day and open only a few hours at night, and the difference between a pool room and a picture show is certainly in favor of the show.

There was never anything said about opening a show for the colored people in the Princess building. There will be a moving picture show started in Earlington somewhere for the colored people and the service will be the same as is now being shown at the Jolly Hour. Just where the show will be located is not yet known.

DISSOLUTION OF TOBACCO TRUST

Considered By President Wilson And Members Of The Cabinet

Washington, June 3.—Practically the entire time of President Wilson and the Cabinet at the regular semi-weekly meeting today was given over to a discussion of the recent dissolution of the so-called Tobacco Trust.

Attorney General McReynolds has for some time been conducting preliminary observations to determine if the decree of dissolution had been observed in its spirit and if, in fact, "a Tobacco Trust" still exists. It was regarded as significant by some familiar with the cause that the Attorney General's attention to the situation had progressed far enough to be outlined to the President and the Cabinet.

Mr. McReynolds, who was special counsel for the Government in the prosecution which ended in the Supreme Court's opinion, did not agree with the method of dissolving the "Trust" approved by former attorney General Wickersham and dissented to several features. Since he took office as Attorney General there have been repeated indications that he was watching closely the working of the separated units of the big monopoly.

Attorney General McReynolds flatly declined to discuss what he had presented to the President and the Cabinet, and would not indicate what his plans might be.
